A narrow foot bridge, which Waggoner takes in his stride.

Girl Fails in Bid to Get Post as Page

WASHINGTON (AP) — After writing letters to President Nixon and every member of the House of Representatives, a 16-year-old Miami high school girl apparently has failed in her bid to enter the all-male world of congressional pages.

House patronage committee member B.F. Sisk, D-Calif., says no change currently is anticipated in the policy of hiring only young men to fill water glasses, carry messages and run numerous other errands that keep pages busy when the House is in session.

Seemingly dashed by Sisk's words are the hopes of slim, blonde honor student Wendy Green who had written the representatives asking them not to hold her sex against her because "some of the greatest people in the world started out as girls."

Sisk told a reporter none of the House members are antifemale, but that Washington is no place to turn a teen-age girl loose on her own.

YOUTH A-PEAL—Latest engineer trying to bridge the Generation Gap turns out to be Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, who says kids should think of their parents as men and women rather than mothers and fathers, letting them "be their own persons and accept them for what they are." Lot of other good thoughts in a paperback called "Tune in on Life—You and the Generation Gap," which we'll get to you if you're interested.

SCRUB-A-DUB-DUB—It's pretty hard to break an LP these days, but it's no problem to ruin one. So the folks at Garrard, who make goodies on which make records are played, pass along a few tips. Like a good way to keep records clean is to wash 'em in a solution of lukewarm tap water and a mild detergent (believe it or not). Rinse the record under running tap water and let it dry in the dish rack. They'll be so clean you can eat off 'em—play better, too.

CLOTHES NOSE—Congrats to Herman Gimbel, head man at Audio Fidelity Records and the best-dressed man in American business, according to the Fashion Foundation of America. Sassy Herman predicts that men's suits and shirts will be pocketless within the next few years. Which is O.K. since we probably won't have any coins to put in pockets in towns keep going the way they are (that's our thought, not Herman's).

WHEAT WINNER—Seems like months ago (it was) that we asked you to supply a nifty name for The Guess Who's third LP. Told you that their first two were Wheatfield Soul and Canned Wheat and suggested that you think wheat, which a lot of you did. Turned out The Guess Who didn't (they named their third American album), but no matter. Best title, according to Youth Beat's vast staff of highly-trained title freaks, was The Wheat Goes On, which was sent in by Joanne Marinos of Brooklyn. The three Guess Who LPs are on the way.

FLICK TRICKS—Way back in the Dark Ages, young people dreamed of writing "the great American novel," but seems like most of you are bent on making the great American movie. Since we'd like to live long enough to see the great American movie, we'll gladly send you Eastman Kodak's "Careers in Motion" Picture Production in your hand to read, care of U.S. paper.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT—Youth Beat's readers are up to any challenge, or so it seems. You may recall that a few weeks ago we wondered if anybody could think of anything sophisticated about a pastrami. Somebody, Lynn Murray of Tampa, Fla., did. To be exact, did Says Lynn:

Pastrami, my dear, is a Jewish delicacy. A high quality meat, usually corned beef, which is smoked and cured. It is a delicious, tender, and flavorful meat. It is often served on a slice of rye bread with mustard. It is a favorite food of many people.

In the early '60s, Chanel designed a shoe that was so right with her clothes that her models have worn it in every collection since. And the Chanel sling has continued as a perennial favorite. Now it stars on Broadway where Katharine Hepburn brings Coco Chanel to life on the stage. Above are the shoe Chanelisms designed by Delmon for the "Coco" production. Left, beige with black mette calf tip; center, white peau de soie on a slightly higher heel tipped with gold; right, the classic sling in the well-loved beige and black with newer high heel. The Chanel sling is an American Footwear Institute Selection.

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

ESPECIALLY FOR BOYS

Dear Helen: Girls think they're the only ones who have trouble attracting the opposite sex!

Let me tell you, half the guys I know—even the ones that appear sure of themselves—are scared of being put down by girls. This is why we wait and goof around at school so long before we ask for a date.

Maybe girls don't know what it's like to hear, "Thanks but no thanks" after you've worked up your courage for a week. You go home wondering what's wrong with you, and how come she acted interested when she probably hated you after all? Was she just practicing on you?

Self-confidence is a bigger hang-up for guys than for girls. I think. We lack it, but we can't admit it. We have to pretend we're making it big even if every girl we try gives us the brush-off. . . and if one DOES seem to like us, we blow it either by bragging or acting dumb.

We're always competing with "that other guy" who knows just how to treat a girl and never stumbles over his feet or spills his Coke in her lap, and can kiss her on the ear without feeling foolish.

What I mean is: Girls, stop worrying about how to get a guy, and think instead, how you can get a guy to feel comfortable with you. Then you won't have to worry about how to get that guy! . . . MIKE

Dear Helen: You asked for pointers on how a boy can attract and keep a girl. Here are mine:

1. He should look his best but not show people he's aware of it. The big "Here I am, you lucky girls" goes over like cherry pits in a pie.

2. Girls like the shy guy, so stop worrying about mistakes. Just start a conversation, and show 'em you appreciate them!

3. Boys should practice "that look"—the one which says "Gosh, you're great," without saying a word.

4. Over-polliteness makes a girl uncomfortable, but lack of manners makes her mad.

5. Giving a girl credit for a few brains gains points for a guy. Don't talk down to her.

6. If boys would realize that most girls don't like those St. Bernard dog kisses, what a great blessing it would be! Contrary to what they think, sloppy kissers don't turn us on. If you put it to a vote, you'd find the majority of girls can't stand "frenching," or "soul kisses."

7. Courtesy, consideration and kindness rank as high for boys as they do for girls. The big bruster he-man stuff went out with football heroes. Of course, it doesn't hurt if he's good at sports, but nowadays girls will like him just as well if he's high on brains.

8. Phones don't rate. If a guy puts on an act to prove he's what he isn't, he won't be where it's at with the girls.

9. A good sense of humor is important, but the "life of the party" can get very tiresome. Likewise, girls like leader-types but they don't buy a lot of bossing.

10. Last, a boy should be sincere. If he uses a girl to test his line, or to brag about next day, he'll deserve to be played for a sucker the next girl around.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble, or just plain trouble, let Helen help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of Hope Star, Copyright, 1969, Inc.

Cranberry Salad

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Cranberries do more than brighten a meal. The legend is that early American sailors made use of the tart fruit's high Vitamin C content to ward off scurvy.

Most cooks turn to the cranberry for aesthetic reasons but with growing emphasis on the nutritional value of foods and on health, consider the polky cranberry chock full of minerals and vitamins. Use in salads and serve with meat or fish. protein dishes for a completely balanced meal.

PERSONAL FINANCE

By CARLTON SMITH and RICHARD PUTNAM PRATT

Keeping tab on the indexes that measure this nation's rate of inflation has become almost an obsession. Bankers, labor leaders and even housewives have joined the government's army of statisticians in charting the eroding value of the dollar.

Considering all the attention it gets, it's hard to see how any aspect of inflation could sneak by very many of us. But apparently it does. Insurance records indicate that too many otherwise alert citizens allow inflation to chew away at their homeowners' coverage until the protection is heavily sabotaged.

It all begins innocently enough when the policy is first taken out. A realistic value is placed on the building, and the homeowner basks in the warm glow that comes with having barred the door against disaster.

But then inflation, like a great financial termite, begins its work. The value of the dollar goes down. The cost of replacing your house goes up, and within a year or two, the amount for which your house is insured is no longer sufficient.

Apparently, many homeowners are dimly aware of what's happening but ignore it on a false premise. Few houses ever burn to the ground, they think. So $15,000 worth of coverage should be plenty for a $25,000 house.

What they don't know is that a fire loss will be figured on replacement cost, less depreciation. If coverage doesn't equal 80 per cent of value, depreciation doesn't count when the 80 per cent requirement is met.

It's a simple enough matter to increase the face amount of a homeowners' policy periodically. Thus staying ahead of the inflation problem. Yet like so many simple things, this one is too often put off even by those who are most aware of the problem.

Puffers Are Favored at Tucson Meet

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - It's a puffer's course," said Lee Trevino.

"It's a puffer's course, definitely," said Bob Murphy. And Billy Casper, considered by many to be the puffer of them all, was just one stroke back of the leading Trevino and Murphy going into today's second round of the $100,000 Tucson Open golf tournament.

Murphy and Trevino matched six under par 66's - Trevino with a double bogey six on the last hole - Thursday on the flat, wide open Tucson National Golf Club course.

The steady Casper and Dudley Wyson, an 8-year tour veteran who hasn't won in four years, were just one stroke back at 67.

The group of eight at 68 included 49-year-old Julius Boros, Mason Rudolph, Tom Shaw, and J.C. Snead, nephew of Sam Snead.

Frank Beard, last year's leading money winner, was in a large group at 89 and U.S. Open title holder Orville Moody had a par 72 in the near perfect golfing conditions - warm, sunny weather with virtually no wind.

Casper, one of only three men to reach $1 million in winnings and the winner of the Los Angeles Open earlier this year, loomed as a definite threat.

He had six birdies including long putts of 25, 14, 20, and 25 feet, and a single bogey, three putting the last green.

Both Murphy and Trevino said the flat course is made for the good puffer.

"You can miss the fairways and still hit the green," Trevino said.

Trevino, who scored his last victory in this tournament a year ago, was extremely annoyed with his double bogey on the final hole.

"It's as much my fault as it is my caddy's," he said. "Except one thing, I'm going to kill him."

He was eight-under-par when he stepped to the last tee. He had to wait a couple of minutes while "two ladies walked down the middle of the fairway. I guess they were out for their Sunday stroll. I waited because I didn't want to hit anyone. But I knew I was going to take a six, I'd have hit them."

His caddy handed him a driver.

"I wasn't thinking," Trevino said. "The weight had broken my concentration. The caddy's supposed to think for me. He knows I'm charged up. He's been with me for two years. So he hands me a driver. I'm eight-under with out of bounds on one side and water on the other and I shouldn't have been playing for anything but a five and he hands me a driver."

Trevino promptly put the shot in the water.

He had seven birdies, three after irons left him five-foot putts, the others on putts ranging from 10 to 30 feet, and he eagled the par-five 11th after a three-wood shot put him eight-feet away.

Murphy bogied the first hole but birdied three of the four par-fives, had a pair of deuces and reeled off a string of three Razzle-dazzle is fine in any game provided it works. Every bridge expert will recall with pleasure a sure razzle-dazzle he has gotten away with.

He will also tell you that over the years razzle-dazzle has not really paid off and may cite today's hand as an example of conspicuously unsuccessful razzle-dazzle.

South and West were both accustomed to fireworks. South started off by responding one no-trump with his 10 high-card points and good club suit. West who was not vulnerable, stuck in a two-heart bid for reasons best known to himself and North closed the bidding at three no-trump.

West felt that if hearts were good enough to bid they were good enough to lead and opened the six-spot. The game was at match point duplicate so South let the lead ride around toward his queen. It didn't get there since East produced the king and returned the eight.

South proceeded to run off dummy's six diamond tricks without further ado and discarded his three spades.

West knew that his partner held the heart five and decided to chuck all three of his spades and the jack and six of clubs.

At this point a conservative South would lead a club, rise with the ace and make the rest of the tricks but that line of play was too prosaic.

South decided that West was holding four hearts and the ace of spades so South stuck in the 10 of clubs.

"Happy Valentine," chortled West as he raked in the rest of the tricks.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

After-Meal Brushing Is Best Procedure

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: For years my teeth have given me no more trouble than a routine checkup and a yearly filling or two. But now my gums have become a cause of concern. Only recently a boil appeared at the edge of the gum next to a molar tooth, and it was exquisitely painful until the boil burst, giving me some welcome relief. What causes these boils and what can be done to prevent them? - Harry A.

ANSWER: In persons of middle-age or older, formation of gum boils at or near the edge of the gums is usually caused by what a lovable old German professor of mine used to call "schmutz."

Schmutz is the German word for debris and when gum pockets around teeth or between roots of teeth become impacted with food debris they become acutely inflamed. This is called periodontal infection or disease.

Periodontal disease is a disease of the bone and gums around teeth. No one cause is known but we do know that this disease, which results in more tooth loss than any other dental disease, is most often found in mouths where oral hygiene has been neglected meal after meal, day after day and month after month.

What's the best treatment for this disease? Prevention. If you brush your teeth carefully after every meal, and thoroughly cleanse areas between teeth with dental floss or other recommended mechanical means, the likelihood of gum infections, acute or chronic, will be vastly reduced, possibly eliminated.

Periodontal disease cannot be treated by tooth brushing alone. First your dentist or periodontist must scrape tartar and debris from the neck and root surfaces of each tooth; surgically remove deep gum pockets where necessary; adjust the "bite" where it's disharmonious; direct necessary rehabilitative dental work needed to replace missing teeth and keep remaining teeth healthy. Home care then becomes vital in maintaining good oral health. I saw a patient recently who swore he brushed his teeth every morning and night - and I believed him. But on examination, I found food debris all over his teeth and gums.

Why? Because he brushed at the wrong times. It doesn't make sense to brush teeth before breakfast and before going to bed. The correct time to brush is after each time you eat - when you crumb-up your teeth with food.

And, when you've finished brushing, look into a mirror to see if you've done a good job. If you find white matter (or worse) between your teeth, then you have not brushed well and should brush again.

Yes, it's almost necessary to be compulsive about tooth brushing, if you want your teeth to last as long as you probably will.

UCLA Takes 19th Win in a Row

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer

"I'm sure that for Washington State our Pauley Pavilion is as much of a snake pit as their gym is to us."

It was only last Monday in Pullman, Wash., that UCLA escaped from the brink of defeat by scoring five straight points in the closing minutes for a 72-70 victory over the Cougars.

Hope Finds Friday 13th Tough Day

By KALVIN HOOTON

Star Sportsman

It was Friday the 13th, and Hope will not forget it. Because the Bobcats were blasted 75-65 by the Arkadelphia Badgers in an important 4-AA West game last night in Arkadelphia.

Through a torrid first half the Badgers scored 30 of 32 from the field, good for all of 62.5 percent, and their 42-25 intermission margin held well till the end.

Tonight Hope goes to Malvern to meet the Leopards' Homecoming celebration, and the Bobcats are now 9-11 for the season and 1-5 in the division. Arkadelphia is 15-6 overall and also 1-5 in 4-AA West, and the Badgers play Fairview tonight.

After a malfunctioning scoreboard delayed the start for several minutes, Arkadelphia still quickly sealed their home-court mastery of Hope which has lasted six years.

Guards Freddie Lookadoo and Roosevelt Davis each popped from 20 feet for a 4-0 Badger lead, but Hope stayed around as Larry Muldrew opened the scoring with a seven-point spree.

Davis was on his way to a 21-point first half, though, and could not be stopped. The Bobcats also couldn't control the offensive backboard, and some turnovers produced Davis scores which meant a 21-11 spread for the Badgers at the quarter.

And it never got any better. Now Hope suffered because the guards didn't score, with Muldrew and John Dudley taking the load. But the Badgers got on the move by scoring on eight consecutive trips down in floor during the second period.

That made it 40-21 with two minutes till the half, and Arkadelphia commanded 42-25 at the break itself. But the Badgers kept up a tough man-to-man defense that confused the Bobcats and kept the same trend going in the third segment.

Unbelievably, it too Arkadelphia 4 1/2 minutes to make a field goal in the second half. So the Cats obliged with fouls galore, and the difference just kept growing.

One time it was as high as 25 at 5:28, when Hope Coach John Ross pulled his starters save Muldrew and put in some of the "B" Bruins, who had won their first game 45-31.

Soph Lynn Norton got four points as the Bobcats crawled back to 55-35 after three quarters, in two more minutes it was down to 15 as the Badgers led it 60-45.

Foul shots cut out any comebacks, though, and two closing buckets gave Arkadelphia its 72-55 victory.

Again the problems of mistakes, lack of aggressiveness and points from the guards, and mental letdowns hurt the Bobcats. Five games is quite a few to lose in succession, and it would be nice for Hope to make up for it all with an upset at Malvern.

We shall see.

Drop the Jargon and Tell the Score

By DICK KLEINER

West Coast Correspondent

LOS ANGELES — (NEA) — Ever listen to those television play-by-play announcers, who tell you that the defensive halfback is executing a buttonhook, single-reverse, overhead cam maneuver and watch his left shoulder the next time the passer takes a Statue of Liberty play? And then forgets to mention the score for 20 minutes?

Suddenly, there's a big influx of that type — the ex-pro who thinks he has to be so technical every minute. And Tom Harmon, the first big-time athlete to become a sportscaster, doesn't like it any more than you do.

"They're supertechnical," the old Michigan running back says. "They use jargon that just confuses the public."

Harmon says that a man who has been an athlete has an advantage as a sportscaster — "He has a second sense of what's happening, and therefore can call something quicker" — but he must also be able to talk well.

"He should be trained in radio or TV work," he says. "He has to be able to pick out just the things that will interest the public, and leave the rest behind."

He himself does not do play-by-play now. He has his own unit, with its own studio and mobile studio, that puts together a daily ABC radio show, plus some television and film work as well. They go all over, following play rights and refused to let Harmon and his team interview the golfers. Harmon doesn't deny the network's right to buy the play-by-play, but says that's all they can buy.

"No network owns the right to news," he says. "They can sell the play-by-play rights to NBC or CBS or ABC, but as a working newsman I should be able to cover the event before or after. They are, in effect, restraining my livelihood. They could buy the rights to a political convention or a war, and nobody else could report it, if this principle keeps up."

Among his other angers at the moment:

"I had hoped to live long enough to see sports-casting judged on the basis of talent. But I don't think I'll make it. What it's judged on today is cliques, friendships, sponsor associations. Not talent."

"Sportscasters are mistreated, financially. A network will pay $200,000 for a special featuring, say, Jack Benny. And he'll keep close to 40 per cent of that. But take a big sports event like a Rose Bowl. Maybe the network will pay a million and a half. If the sportscaster gets $1,000, the network screams that he's overpaid."

"They won't let a sportscaster on the board of AFTRA (the radio-television union). They let a dancer and an actor and a singer, but for some reason there has never been a sportscaster."

Plea for the Tiger

ROCHESTER, N.Y.—(NEA)—One lone young lady in long brown hair and brown leather coat and brown leather boots marched up and back in the evening drizzle. She marched in front of the War Memorial building holding a handmade sign which had a picture of a tiger and in blood-red lettering: "Save Tigers—Stop Killing Them."

Now it was true that Rochester, a town usually laid low by snow, was enjoying an unseasonably temperate night. Still, picketing polar bear deaths would seem, on the surface, a more pressing local issue than tiger-killing.

A chartered bus pulled up in front of the building. A group disembarked. They were there to attend the banquet honoring the Hickok award winner, who happened to be Tom Seaver, as professional athlete of the year. This is a great event in Rochester.

Mrs. Sally Hickok, wife of Ray who owns the Hickok belt company, came off the bus and said amid quizzical faces and voices: "Oh, I know what that's all about. Ray and I are leaving tomorrow for a safari in India, guests of the Maharaja."

Leather-jacketed patrolmen huddled at the top of the stairs, out of the rain. Mrs. Hickok seemed to know them, and they her.

"That's in your honor, Mrs. Hickok," said one of them, smiling politely.

Mrs. Hickok was dressed in delicate tan suit and her hair is shoulder-length and the color is the subdued brown of wealthy women. She wore no coat. She looked kindly at the lone picket, who was a 17-year-old Rochester high school girl named Sherry Storey. Mrs. Hickok watched the girl's doleful face as she marched up and back. "She has the face of someone who cares," said Mrs. Hickok. "She's awfully pretty."

Why, Sherry Storey was later asked, are you picketing?

"Because I am against killing," she said softly and seriously, "and killing a tiger is still killing. And you know there are only 600 tigers left in the world." She cited an eminent conservationist as an authority for her figure. "Mrs. Hickok has said that the safari will only kill those tigers that killed villagers. But the tigers are forced to kill because their land is being taken from them, just the way the American Indians fought the white men years ago."

"I can understand it Mrs. Hickok and the rest of the group needed the tiger meat to eat. But not for pelt. And I have nothing against sportsmen, either. I mean, I love to go on a picnic and play football."

Sherry said that she has written the Rochester papers 30 letters. "But none have been printed," she said.

Sherry said that this is the first time she has picketed. She almost did it once before, though, on another conservation issue.

"My father is the head chef of the Rochester Country Club," she said. "Not long ago he prepared a big game dinner. I was going to picket my house."

Why didn't you?

"Because he wouldn't have let me back in."

Mrs. Hickok asked her son Tom, a 17-year-old college freshman, to speak with the girl. Tom is, like Sherry, an open-faced, gentle youngster. They spoke in the rain for some time.

Tom, in the end, asked her to send him and his family conservation literature.

Mrs. Hickok was saving. "The Maharaja of Mewar is a friend of ours. He invited us and the Rackwells of Pitts-burgh. He invited us two years ago, but then our two other sons were killed in a car crash. And last year I was sick."

"This is the Maharaja's last safari. He is a conservationist, too. But I certainly would never want to kill just to kill. In fact, I saw the beautiful new albino tiger in our Zoo. I could never shoot that."

Mrs. Hickok concentrated on the girl, who was talking with her son in the rain and said quietly: "I know when I see the elephant I will look out and see that girl's face."

They were stopped only once — and a lawsuit is now in the works which may have a major effect on the future of sportscasting.

It Feels Colder and It Sure Is

If you think it is a bit colder than it was when you were a child, credit your nerves with a dependable performance and read on. It is colder—colder in winter, colder in summer, too. How much colder? Well, colder enough to measure.

According to Murray Mitchell, head climatologist for the Environmental Services Administration, the whole world, including the North Pole, South Charleston and Death Valley, has cooled off by about one-third of a degree since 1950.

Not much, at first glance, perhaps, but as such things are calculated, this is pretty fast refrigeration. If this keeps up, says Mr. Mitchell, at the rate of about one-sixth of a degree every decade, it will take only 240 years to plunge the world as we know it back into another Ice Age.

The hairy mammoth would sweep down from the Arctic wasteland to roam the state-house grounds. Only a handful of old-timers would notice the difference. The chuckholes which now threaten the highway system would engulf it completely, and it would scarcely matter. The cars which drive on them would not start at all—and maybe a good thing, too.—Charleston (W. Va.) Daily Mail

Medical Message

Doctors of the District of Columbia Medical Society are being requested to post "No Smoking" signs in their offices as a discouragement to smokers.

Such signs may do a bit of good, but a far more effective display would be for doctors to decorate their offices with pictures of lungs ravaged by excessive smoking—or perhaps by the actual lungs themselves.—Columbia (S.C.) State

Possies

Garden catalogues, which Northerners pore over at this time of year, have gone "Mod." Or perhaps we should say "mad." Names of new flowers include such swingers as "Sweet Bippy," "A Go-Go," "Groovy" and "Tiger."

Can you imagine a new variety of sweet alyssum named "Tiny Tim?"

Our verdict on this incipient trend is: Nip it in the bud.—Miami (Fla.) Herald

Waiting To Look Back

We shall look back upon the winter of 1969-70, the experts tell us, for the extraordinary variations in temperatures as well as the frequency of snow and duration of its ground cover. Records have been set, they say, in first one category and then the other.

That's all very well. But we shall be content simply to look back on this period, especially from the vantage point of some warm spring day when the grass is green, the leaves are out and the sun is beaming.—Chattanooga (Tenn.) Post

Black Newsmen Won't Give Up Notes, Tapes

NEW YORK (AP) — Seventy black newsmen say they will resist any attempts by investigators to see their unrecorded or unprinted notes, tapes or films. "We are not the white world's spies in the black community," they said Thursday. "We are black journalists attempting to interpret, with as great an understanding and truth as is possible, the nation's social revolutions."

They said any appearance of a "deal" with lawmen would injure their relations with news contacts.

Their statement, to be published next week in the Negro weeklies The Amsterdam News and The New York Courier, was inspired by a subpoena issued to a New York Times reporter, Earl Caldwell, a Negro.

A federal grand jury investigating the Black Panthers in San Francisco told Caldwell to bring unpublished notes and tapes of interviews with Panther leaders. Caldwell refused to give up a bit on my grasp to permit the Times. The Justice Department then postponed Caldwell's appearance date indefinitely.

Finds Reason Doctors, Dentists Stock Old Magazines in Offices

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — For years, like most patients, I had idly wondered while sitting in the waiting rooms of doctors and dentists why they were stocked with old magazines from three months to 50 years out-of-date.

There must be some reason that current issues of any periodical were rarely, if ever, available. I decided to find out why.

After consulting the musty and dusty dens of several magazine dealers, I was referred to Mr. Irving F. Teetlebaum, whose shop was in a third-floor walkup near Times Square.

"Mr. Teetlebaum," I said, "I understand you are a specialist dealing in back issues of magazines to be sold to doctors and dentists."

"I'm the biggest in the world," he said. "Tell me how big your office is and I'll tell you how many you need."

Teetlebaum looked bitterly disappointed when I told him I was no customer but merely wanted to know why doctors and dentists keep old rather than new magazines in their anterooms.

"If they kept new magazines, their patients would steal them," he said. "And doctors and dentists are like everyone else—they have a distinct aversion to giving away something for nothing."

though it will ruin me. But as I was going to retire next month anyway, I might as well tell you the secret."

"Go on."

"Well, the real reason doctors and dentists keep only old magazines around is because it saves them from embarrassment."

"Why is that, old man?"

"The new magazines have articles about the latest drugs and newest medical treatments, things a busy doctor hasn't yet had time to find out about. If a patient starts asking the doctor about them, he doesn't know what the patient is talking about. That doesn't make him look so good."

"On the other hand, if the patient has read a health article in a magazine 10 years or more old, the doctor or dentist isn't so likely to be surprised by the information in it. Most medical men, however, prefer magazines from 20 to 50 years out of date."

"Where do you get most of these magazines?"

"Some come from the cornerstones of old buildings being torn down. But most of them I buy from old doctors when they quit their practice. Those most in demand are back copies of the National Geographic. Most health articles it carries are about native witch doctors, and a modern doctor can fool-pooh their theories."

"Is it a profitable business?"

Holdout on Genocide Pact May Change

By BARRY SCHWEID

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is mapping a fight to break a 20-year logjam that has made the United States the most conspicuous holdout against an international treaty banning genocide.

His first step, it has been learned, will be an effort to reverse American Bar Association opposition to the treaty, a direct outgrowth of German extermination of 6 million Jews during World War II.

Nixon probably will come out for Senate ratification later this month, sources said, timing his statement to coincide with consideration of the treaty at the ABA's midwinter convention Feb. 23 in Atlanta, Ga.

This will be in tandem with a lobbying effort at the ABA convention itself.

A tough battle is looming, with opponents of the treaty marshaling arguments that ratification could open the United States to international trials on genocide charges raised by Black Panthers, North Vietnam and others.

The treaty makes an international crime of acts of mass destruction of racial, religious or ethnic groups. The ratifying nations agree to punish individuals for acts of genocide. Individuals—or countries—could be punished by the United Nations.

Though the United States signed the treaty in 1948 under President Harry S. Truman, it has withheld ratification since—largely because of opposition by ABA spokesmen, some Southern members of Congress and the late John Foster Dulles, secretary of state to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Now, in the expectation that a new generation of bar leaders has emerged after two decades, sources indicate administration forces will join hands with ABA President Bernard G. Segal and other top lawyers to try to win endorsement by the association's House of Delegates.

The State and Justice departments already have given their clearance to ratification.

"We anticipate a hard core of opposition which has existed for 20 years," said Mrs. Hauser in a telephone interview, "but we feel the developments in the last 20 years in the field of international human rights are going to produce a change of minds in the current membership of the American Bar Association."

However, it won't be easy. Several former ABA presidents are lined up to speak against ratification.

Others opposing include Eberhard P. Deutsch, a prominent New Orleans lawyer who is chairman of the ABA's treaty law committee.

Deutsch, explaining his opposition in a telephone interview, said the treaty could lead to trial in Vietnam of U.S. soldiers accused by Hanoi of genocide, whether the charge is justified or not.

"If the man were tried in the United States he would even be subject to extradition to Vietnam if he were found innocent here," Deutsch said.

Revenge Is Cry of Huge Egypt Rally

By JOSEPH F. DYNAN

Associated Press Writer

CAIRO (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of Egyptians hailed President Gamal Abdel Nasser at a rally Friday, but the mood in Cairo seemed calm despite the Israeli air raid that killed 70 factory workers.

Although police said half a million participated in the demonstration, much of Cairo resembled a Western city enjoying a Sunday afternoon because Friday is the Muslim holy day.

Traffic was light, hundreds strolled along the sunny banks of the Nile while others window shopped, crowded into cinemas or lolled at sidewalk cafes.

There was talk, of course, of the Israeli attack on the metal factory 17 miles north of the downtown area Thursday. Officials said the attack resulted in the heaviest toll of civilian casualties since the 1967 war.

The holiday made it difficult to assess the mood of the people, but one striking exception was the mass outpouring at noon around the 1,000-year-old Azhar Mosque near Cairo's bazaar quarter.

Thousands gathered to cheer Nasser, Libya's revolutionary leader Col. Muammar Kadafi and Sudan's Premier Jaafar Numeiri as they arrived waving and smiling in an open car to attend a Muslim prayer service.

The three leaders seem to have been almost constant companions since the Arab summit last December as they continue discussion on the alliance they are forming.

The crowds screaming "Nasser, Nasser" cast doubt on the validity of diplomats' predictions that Nasser would lose some of the immense power and prestige he holds in Egypt and the Arab world as a result of the Israeli raids.

Waving banners that said "Revenge, Revenge" or "down with American-Israeli collaboration," the crowds were noisy and emotional, at times verging on the hysterical, but they seemed well under the control of heavily armed police.

'Cooking a Husband' Recipe Apparently Is Fun to All Housewives

By MARY ANITA LASETER

Star Feature Writer

For Valentine's Day, Anita Thomas (Mrs. Gilbert Thomas now of Louisville, Ky., but a former Hope resident) once gave us a fun recipe we would like to pass along to you. It's called "Cooking a Husband."

A good many husbands are utterly spoiled by mismanagement. Some women go about it as though their husbands were bladders, and blow them up. Others keep them constantly in hot water.

Others let them freeze by their carelessness and indifference. Some keep them in a pickle all their lives. It cannot be supposed that any husband will be tender and good, managed in this way, but they are really delicious when properly treated.

In selecting your husband, you should not be guided by the silly appearance, as in buying mackerel, nor by the golden tint, as if you wanted a salmon. Be sure to select him yourself, as tastes differ. Do not go to market for him, as the best are always brought to your door. It is far better to have none, unless you will patiently learn how to cook him.

Radar Device to Catch Ships Dumping Oil

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A radar-like device which sees through darkness and fog has been developed to catch vessels which dump thousands of barrels of waste oil in American waters each year.

This illegal practice, usually carried out furtively by ships approaching port, is a major source of pollution of U.S. coastal waters.

U.S. Coast Guard planes spotted more than 800 such spills last year and other sources estimate the number of spills may run as high as 10,000 annually.

At present the Coast Guard has to rely on visual sightings in daylight and it has been difficult to prove which of several ships sighted near a slick at dawn dumped oil during the night.

To meet a Coast Guard need to catch the culprits in the act, even at night or in bad weather, engineers at Aerojet-General's Space Division came up with a "camera" sensitive not to visible light but to microwave radiations—the basis of radar.

The device, called a microwave radiometer, is an adaptation of a sensor carried by surveillance aircraft to spot enemy vessels at night and in fog through detection of traces of oil in their wakes.

Weighing less than 100 pounds, it can be carried by the light planes the Coast Guard uses to patrol harbors and coastal waters.

What the camera sees is displayed on a screen in the plane's cabin. Since oil and water give off different microwave emissions, the appearance of an oil slick can be detected quickly even in darkness and the ship that dumped it identified before it can leave the scene.

Cdr. William Lehr, chief of the Coast Guard's pollution control branch, said the need to dump oil at sea arises from the practice of taking on seawater as ballast to maintain stability.

At the start of a voyage, ballast tanks usually contain fuel oil, which is replaced by seawater as it is consumed. When the vessel nears port, the seawater is pumped out to make room for fresh fuel. By that time the sloshing action of the waves has mixed the two and large quantities of fuel oil go overboard with the water.

This can be avoided by saving the mixture of water and oil and pumping it into storage facilities in port, but ship officers often find it cheaper and more convenient to dump at sea.

The dumping may occur miles offshore, but winds and tides often carry the slick into harbors and onto beaches.

Aerojet research engineer Al Edgerton said a radiometer in a plane flying at 2,000 feet can cover a swath half a mile wide, detecting slicks as small as a few feet across.

U.S. Planes Hit Enemy Inside Laos

By GEORGE SPENCER

Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Scores of American fighter-bombers are flying direct combat support for Laotian government ground troops under attack by North Vietnamese forces around the Plain of Jars, a source said today.

The source said the mission originates at a half-dozen bases in Thailand, and implied that some planes may be taking the Da Nang Air Base in South Vietnam and U.S. 7th Fleet carriers in the Tonkin Gulf.

The stepped-up air effort in direct support of Laotian ground troops will not detract from the 300 to 400 sorties a day being flown against the Ho Chi Minh trail network, the source said. Bombing sorties are being flown around the clock to meet the requirements of both missions.

Although President Nixon said last fall that American bombers are attempting to "interdict" the movement of North Vietnamese troops and supplies down the Ho Chi Minh trail, the United States has never publicly admitted that its planes fly direct combat support for Laotian forces.

Sources said North Vietnamese troops had captured at least eight outposts around the junction of Route 7 and Route 71 near Nong, but at the northeastern edge of the Plain of Jars.

"These are outposts on the hills that overlook the roads," said one source. "They are the controlling elements for getting onto the plain by road. The North Vietnamese have captured most of them, but they still do not have unrestricted access."

Another said North Vietnamese forces had suffered "heavy casualties," including 70 troops killed in one battle. These sources, sympathetic to the Laotian government, described the losses of Lao government forces as "light."

The U.S. Embassy in Laos reported that the long-expected North Vietnamese offensive in the Plain of Jars area had begun.

"I think the enemy will put on more pressure," said one source. "This looks like a three-month operation."

The source indicated that government forces would not attempt to hold the Plain of Jars, but would fight orderly delaying actions and try to inflict heavy casualties on the North Vietnamese. "We are going to make it difficult for the enemy," he added. "We are not just going to walk away from it."

Prince Souvanna Phouma, the Laotian premier, proposed last week that North Vietnamese troops withdraw from the plain in return for a "hands off" attitude by the government toward the Ho Chi Minh trail.

But North Vietnam rejected the proposal, calling Laotian and U.S. claims that there are more than 50,000 North Vietnamese troops in Laos "staggering allegations."

The Plain of Jars, about 50 miles long and 20 miles wide, is 100 miles north-northeast of Vientiane, the capital. It is tactically important because it controls the country's main roads.

Some 12,000 mountain tribesmen were evacuated from the southern part of the plain during the past 10 days in anticipation of the North Vietnamese Pathet Lao offensive.

North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces held the Plain of Jars from 1964 until last September, when they withdrew under a heavy onslaught by American fighter-bombers and advancing Lao troops.

Elements and Pigeons Win

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) —

The pigeons and the elements have won. The custom of holding annual property auctions on the Courthouse steps to satisfy delinquent taxes is over in Memphis. The auctions are going indoors.

County Trustee Riley Garner said he is tired of standing in the rain, shivering in the cold, basking in the sun and having documents soaked by the wind.

"Uncomfortable," he said, "yes it was uncomfortable on the steps—and then too the last couple of times, the birds have been pretty bad."

N.Y. Crime Rate Has Decreased

NEW YORK (AP) — The

city's crime rate, which increased 32.7 per cent in 1967 and 21.8 per cent in 1968, decreased one per cent last year.

However, figures released Wednesday showed violent crimes—such as murder, rapes, robberies and assaults—increased 7.3 per cent. There were 1,043 murders reported. Burglaries and larcenies, about two-thirds of all reported crimes, decreased 3.8 per cent.
